Golden Anniversary Celebrated

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Williams was a veritable gold mine Tuesday in its glowing array of golden and yellow flowers, which added so much to the beauty of their Golden Anniversary celebration. Poppies, jonquils, marigolds and other flowers in profusion made a charming setting for the "bride and groom."

The years have dealt kindly with Mr. and Mrs. Williams, their faces rivaling in good looks their photographs of fifty years ago. Mrs. Williams having a far sweeter appearance. Many wished it was the custom to "kiss the bride" on these occasions.

Refreshments of ice-cream, punch and wafers were served in the dining-room, where the guests also registered their names. Napkins, decorated in gold, and bearing the dates of the two events printed in gold, made dainty souvenirs of the occasion.

Mrs. Williams was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Geo. Atkinson, and other ladies of the church, Miss Lucile Strong waiting upon the door.

Most of the guests presented the couple with cut flowers, but several brought flowering plants, among them a Japanese crabapple and a pink camellia, whose beauty will continue to remind the recipients of this delightful day.

A number of the C. E.'s enjoyed a picnic Saturday afternoon, hiking to Albright's Hill.

The Geo. E. Atkinson family are enjoying a new piano, which arrived Tuesday as a surprise to the children.

T. B. Bridges and family and Mr. and Mrs. Briggs of Oakland were guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. Zion Sunday. Mr. Bridges is the head of Heald's Business College at Oakland.

Mr. Harry T. Jones, banker of Seward, Nebraska, and Mrs. Arthur Anderson, motored down from Burlingame and spent Sunday with R. E. Dunphy and family. All were old Nebraska neighbors.

Mrs. E. S. Charles, who has been spending the winter here, left Saturday for her home in Wisconsin. She went via the southern route being accompanied by Mrs. McCrobin who spent the winter in the south.

The student body of the high school has decided to establish a student welfare committee, which will govern all affairs in which the privileges of the students and the good name of the school are involved.

The Christian Endeavorers are planning one of their jolly social evenings for this Friday evening, the 17th, at the Congregational Church. A "Kid Social." Young people and grown-ups will come dressed as and acting like "kids," and bring their baby pictures!

The Campbell Grammar school slugs took Los Gatos into camp by a score of 14 to 11 at Los Gatos Saturday. The Campbell team lined up as follows: H. Shell, 1b; V. Harris, c; S. Isbell, 1b; W. Ferro, rf; L. Reed, ss; Ed. Gratel, 3b; N. Kelley, p; Legrat, 2b and L. Harris, cf.

An informal vote was taken Sunday morning at the Congregational church which it is hoped will lead to good results. A majority of those present, living in Campbell, by vote expressed themselves as willing to forego their Sunday mail and thus give our postoffice force a Sabbath day's rest. Certainly a move in the right direction.

Geo. E. Atkinson spent Monday in the City with G. N. Stray, attending the Executive Committees of the Congregational State Board, and the California H. M. Society. The date of the State Conference was settled at that time, July 25-30 at Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley. These will be morning and evening sessions; leaving the afternoons and Saturday for outings in the Valley.

Roy Creighton, State Field Secretary of the California C. E. Union, put in a busy day at Campbell Tuesday. He spoke at the High School at 1 o'clock, held an informal conference with a few of the local C. E. leaders in the afternoon, another Conference around the supper table later in the parlors of the Congregational Church, and addressed a Christian Endeavor rally at 7:30. The Cupertino C. E. society motored over for the basket lunch and Rally.

Editors Elect

The Santa Clara County Editorial Association held its annual meeting and Election of officers at San Jose Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday. Many subjects of interest to the members were discussed.

A communication was received from Bro. A. B. Smith, a former active member of the association, now located at Pacific Grove, inviting the "gang" to "his town" for a week-end. Acceptance was wired him "collect."

E. W. Smith of the Stanford News was appointed to arrange for a conference of California newspapermen at Stanford in the near future.

The officers for the ensuing year are: President, Harry C. Smith of Campbell; vice-president, E. W. Smith of Stanford; Secretary, R. S. Crowl of Sunnyvale; treasurer, Miss Bernice Downing of Santa Clara; attorney, G. K. Estes of Morgan Hill.

Luncheon was enjoyed at the Montgomery.

5th Successive Victory

The local High boys annexed their fifth victory on the diamond this season Saturday by defeating the San Jose Normal team 7 to 0.

Several of these games have not been scheduled league contests but have been of a high order of practices.

Ed. Pierce on the mound for the locals had some of the old time normal hitters guessing at all times and with the willow joined in the parade.

Gil Duncan picked three nice ones from the sky early in the game while Huntley and Scott got busy later. Brick Campbell has his bunts down to a science and his sacrificing was at most opportune times.

One nice double was worked, Pierce to Kennedy to Ludwig.

"Cap" Oliver worked the boys in great order and did much to help win the game. Price and Hydekarken have shown great work on the infield.

Better Mail Service

An additional mail has been obtained for the Campbell Office by request of Postmaster L. L. Miracle.

This mail arrives at 4:40 P. M. and is made up in San Jose from an accumulation of mail from various points and San Jose, which has in the past been held there until 7 a. m. the following day. This is proving to be a very popular mail and is making a noticeable increase in volume since its installation two weeks ago.

Until the request for this mail was granted the last service for the day from San Jose was at 1:30 P. M.

Campbell now receives seven mails a day and dispatches four.

E. O. Evans and family went to Aromas Monday for a week's visit with relatives.

FIRST TO BUILD TRENCHES

Romans Instituted System of Field Fortifications Which Are Used by the Armies Today.

The Romans, who were the first to make a real science and art of war, were responsible for one of the principal features in western Europe—the fortified frontier. This does not mean the ordinary fortified frontier as it was known up to 1914—a series of strong fortified camps with untrenched gaps between them. It was in southwestern Germany that the Romans built, as a protection against the inroads of German barbarians, what was the prototype of the line of trenches which today runs from Switzerland to the North sea. And just as the German trenches in France and Belgium are to all intents and purposes the frontier of the German empire, so the Roman trenches—the limes Germanicus—were part of the frontier of the Roman empire.

The northern-known in ancient times as the Pfahlgrenzen or palisade ditch—ran from the east bank of the Rhine, near Bonn, across the Taunus mountains and the Main in a general southeasterly direction south to near Stuttgart. It consisted of an earthen wall, with a ditch—the trench being, of course, on the outside and the wall being the position of the defenders. The wall was topped by a palisade, and at intervals there were towers—burgl—occupied by small bodies of troops, who patrolled the intervening sections of wall. At longer intervals were stone redoubts—castella—where larger bodies of guards were stationed. One of the peculiarities of this frontier—which in its details represented, of course, an artificial boundary through what at the time was a very sparsely settled country—was that a stretch of about fifty miles in length ran in a straight line due north. It has been referred to in English and German writings as one of the earliest known boundaries on the American plan.

Near Stuttgart the Pfahlgrenzen meets the Teufelsmauer—the devil's wall—which was the name given in medieval Germany to the other half of the limes Germanicus—a rampart of stone which extends a little south of east till it meets the Danube at Regensburg. There were forts at intervals to strengthen this, and in the main it was apparently garrisoned much like the Pfahlgrenzen.

ELDER NOT ALWAYS THE BEST

Modern Science Has Thoroughly Disproved a Belief That Was Held for Many Centuries.

There was a time when the eldest son was supposed to be superior in all respects to his younger brothers. That time is past. Modern science has proved that when there is any difference the eldest son averages somewhat behind later-born children in mental strength and oftentimes in physical endurance.

Does this, perchance, help to explain why hereditary government is so unsatisfactory; why the direct royal line so frequently runs out and the crown falls to the descendants of some younger brother; why the first prince of a new line is so often superior to any of his successors? Under the royal rule the eldest son of the eldest son takes the crown. If there is even a trifling handicap in being the first born the constant multiplication of this handicap would raise it to considerable proportions in a few generations.

The Turks avoided whatever evils may lurk in the law of primogeniture. They allowed the sultan to name his successor, but provided that this successor must be the son of a slave. In practice he was usually one of the younger sons of the monarch, and always the child of a woman who had wit or beauty enough to make herself the leader of the harem. As a result Turkey had the most wonderful succession of able sovereigns known in history, but the palace intrigues and fratricidal wars to which the custom gave rise proved intolerable.

NIGHT'S BEAUTY IS HIDDEN

Few Artists Have Been Given the Ability to Depict Its Proper Glory and Majesty.

One of the perpetual regrets of painters is the unattainable beauty of night. Whistler's successful Nocturnes are of early twilight.

The later hour, when the world's vast shadow weighs on us, seems unrealizable in paint.

Even Crome, perhaps the greatest master of nightfall pictures, could not go beyond the twilight.

The perfect medium for darkness was discovered by Turner, whose set of engraved Moonlights are among the most precious works that man has made.

There are but about a dozen engraved and printed by the master. They so far transcend his colored drawings, from which they were derived, as to prove that black and white can conjure up the spirit of night more potently than color.

But they are not ordinary mezzotints; they are creative rather than reproductive; no one but Turner could have done them, nor could he have revealed their secret to his en-

The Hague in War Time

THE first thing I did when I arrived at The Hague was to jump into a low-decked cab to see if the Peace palace was still there, writes Karl K. Kitchen. I found it was, and looking quite new and clean, despite the fact that it is untenanted. I'll confess I wasn't much impressed with the huge pile of brick and stone built by my fellow townsman, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, and I'm sure I caught my cabbie laughing at me because I asked so many questions about it. However, the caretakers were positively enthusiastic about the building, and after I had paid a fifty-cent fee two of them assured me that it would be used for its intended purpose.

As I was in a hurry to reach the Hotel des Indes, I gave its empty marble corridors and yawning council chambers the "once over" and returned to my cab.

"Sehr nett, nicht wahr?" said the cabbie, who thought I was a German. I was tempted to say "nit," but I restrained myself with an effort.

Few people I met abroad spoke of the Peace palace seriously, and in The Hague the mere mention of Andrew Carnegie's name invariably provoked smiles or laughter. For Holland is in a position to know that peace in Europe is a remote possibility. And her own position, geographically and every other way, is a very difficult one.

What The Hague Is Like.

The Hague is one of the smallest and least distinguished capitals in Europe. It is really only a suburb of Rotterdam, for it is but twenty-five minutes' ride by electric train. It has a population of about 300,000. Its most imposing pile is the unused Peace palace. The Royal palace looks more like a barracks than a queen's residence.

However, The Hague gives one the impression of being quite an important little place, especially in the early hours of the evening. Then the narrow little streets in the heart of the city are thronged with people and the hotels and coffee houses are filled to overflowing.

Of course, there are plenty of uniforms in evidence, but what is even more noticeable is the large number of Germans, Belgians, Austrians and English who are on every side. Like all neutral capitals on the continent, The Hague is a clearing house for spies. All the Germans, Belgians, Austrians and English one sees are not spies, but many of them are. They do not keep to themselves, as one might expect, but chat with each other across the tables in the coffee houses and bars.

German, Belgian and English newspapers are sold in the streets, and in large numbers, for the reason that there is nothing in the Dutch papers but rumors. Two Belgian papers, l'Echo Belge and La Belgique, are published in Holland, but the Berlin and London papers, especially the Berliner Tageblatt and the London Times, have the call because a larger proportion of the population reads and speaks either English or German.

The Hotel des Indes, which is the best hotel in Holland, is the mecca of the members of the diplomatic corps. Its prices have advanced slightly since the war owing to the increased demand for accommodations. In general, however, restaurant prices are the same as they were two years ago, and one can have a Dutch treat for very little money.

A French opera company is playing at the leading theater—giving performances of "Rigoletto," "Carmen," "The Jewels of the Madonna" to good houses. In addition, there is a playhouse devoted to musical comedy where "The Marriage Market" is the bill, and a variety theater where a fairly good revue is holding forth. I dropped in to see a portion of the revue. It was played in Dutch, but there was enough German in it for me to catch a few of the jokes, which were about the war.

After the theater I went to the Cafe Central which is the principal rendezvous for the well-to-do Hollanders, wealthy refugees and international spies. If one is fond of gin and biters—the national drink of Holland—the Cafe Central is not half bad. But the Dutch beer served there is a great disappointment after the wonderful Pilsener at the Deutsches Haus in Vienna. And its cocktails are vile.

I discussed the "bloedige corlog" (which is Dutch for the awful war) with a friend from Rotterdam, who is in the shipping business. He was particularly bitter against the English because the ships of his line had been held up for weeks, with the result that the annual dividends were cut in half.

"Our sailings are regulated by the British admiralty," he said. "Of course they can wipe us out if they choose to do so and we can't do anything. Literally, we are between the devil and the deep blue sea. And I tell you we'll all be glad when the crazy nations stop killing each other."

"Which side will be victorious?" he repeated. "Well, you can bet on it that peace won't be made here in The Hague. Peace will be dictated either in Berlin or London. You can take your pick. Personally, I pick Berlin, for I don't believe the entire world could crush Germany, let alone the allies, as they are lined up today."

It is interesting to know that conscription is in force in Holland today. Before the war the young men of each district drew lots to determine who should serve and who shouldn't. Today every youth must serve in the army unless physically unfit. Nevertheless, the people of Holland are very well satisfied with their present form of government. The queen is very popular, and is frequently seen walking about The Hague attended by a single companion. The Socialists make a little noise from time to time, but they are in the decided minority. Little by little the country is regaining its former prosperity, and a big boom is expected after the war. No one was able to give me any real reason for their optimism, but the fact remains that they are optimistic.

Head of German Naval Staff.

Admiral von Holtzendorff, recently announced as the new head of the German naval staff, is former commander of the German high seas fleet and one of the big men of the navy. Emperor William gave him command of the high seas fleet at the outset of the dreadnought era, when the advent of the all-big gun type of battleship made Germany a dangerous rival of Great Britain, and he retained that command until just before the war began, when he was succeeded by Admiral von Ingenhoff, who gave way in turn last spring to Admiral von Pohl.

North Carolina Dobbin Is a Loafer.

Horse labor in North Carolina is now estimated to cost an average of seven dollars per acre for each of the 6,500,000 acres in crops in that state. There are 360,000 horses and mules employed on the North Carolina farms, which are kept at an average cost of $125 per animal. These work animals as now handled average only $3 full days of productive work in a year, or less than one day in four—Farm and Fireside.

Twice Found.

Visitor—I suppose you have taken a great deal of pride in your farm.

Farmer—Yes; I was as proud as man can be when I bought this farm.

I don't expect to be that proud but once more in my whole life.

Visitor—When will that be?

Farmer—When I succeed in selling it.

LONG 'NO-MAN'S LAND'

FALKLAND ISLANDS NOT CONSIDERED WORTH POSSESSING.

Though Now a Part of the British Possessions, This Dates Only From the Eighteenth Century—Rivers of Stones.

The Falkland islands, which will always be memorable in the history of the war, were first discovered by a Captain Cowley in the days of Queen Elizabeth, but it was not until 1764, in the days of King George, that the British decided to annex them.

It was then found that the French had established a colony there in the previous year and had annexed the islands in the name of the king of France. The British, however, later came into possession, but were evicted by the Spaniards by main force.

A war between England and Spain was averted, and the English resumed possession, only to abandon the place three years later. Until the transactions which took place between the Argentine and the British governments in the early part of the eighteenth century the islands were a no-man's land.

Lecturing before the Royal Colonial Institute in London recently, Major Quayle Dickson, formerly colonial secretary for the Falklands, remarked that the rivers of stones were considered by many to be the most interesting feature of the Falklands. They varied in length from a few yards to two miles, and from a distance looked like rivers.

There was no accepted explanation of their existence, but one theory put forward was that the whole country (including Patagonia) was at one time covered with ice. When the ice melted these stones were left bare and slipped down the hillsides into the valleys where they were now found. It was also suggested that the boulder streams were due simply to the natural disintegration of the solid rock.

The blocks were not water worn, their angles being only a little blunted. They varied in size from one to two feet in diameter to ten or even twenty times as much, and were not thrown together in irregular piles, but spread out into level sheets or great streams.

It was not possible to ascertain their depth, but the water of small streamlets could be heard trickling through the stones many feet below the surface. The actual depth was probably great, or the crevices between the fragments must long ago have been filled up with sand and peat dust. So large were the stones that one could easily find shelter beneath one of them.

In some cases a continuous stream of these fragments followed up the course of a valley, and extended even to the very crest of the hill. On these crests huge masses, exceeding in dimensions any small buildings, stood as if arrested in their headlong course.

There also the carved strata of the archways lay piled on each other like the ruins of some vast and ancient cathedral.

War and the Horse.

Farm and Fireside quotes American horsemen high in authority as saying that about 500,000 of our horses have been sold on war orders for about $100,000,000 since the outbreak of the war.

Fully 90 per cent of the artillery horses purchased were sired by draft stallions and were out of small mares. The same horse authorities claim that the Belgian breed in Europe has been practically destroyed and Percheron breeding stock has also been heavily sacrificed for war use.

A representative of one of America's greatest horse importers says it would not be possible to find 200 draft stallions suitable for export to America, even were exportation allowed.

The crux of the matter clearly indicates that American horse users must depend on the produce of American studs for draft sires for many years to come.

Judicial Hearing.

Judge T. J. Moll of the superior court, room 5, has the reputation of being accommodating to those attorneys who have cases pending in his court. Recently a relative of a local attorney suffered an accident which made him almost deaf. The attorney was telling another lawyer of the accident, and in the course of this said a specialist, who had been consulted, gave no encouragement of restoring hearing. After listening to the narrative, the second lawyer asked his friend:

"Why don't you take it to Judge Moll? He'll give your relative his hearing at an early date."—Indianapolis News.

Rats Recovered Liberty.

The official ratcatcher of the British Western Railroad company died a few days ago. For over forty years this man's family have been the official ratcatchers of the company. His method was to take the rats alive whenever possible. On one occasion he secured over ninety live rats, which he imprisoned in a cage. Coming home in the train he transferred twenty of the rats from the cage to a sack. He then fell asleep, but was aroused by the rats, which had eaten a hole in the sack, running about the compartment, one being actually up his sleeve.

BEAUTIFUL CORFU

The Villa Achilleon.

ONLY a little over a decade ago the beautiful and picturesque Elizabeth, empress of Austria, built upon that lovely island, Corfu, the Villa Achilleon. And here just to the west of northern Greece, that restless royal soul was wont to "steal awhile away" from the irksome royal etiquette of the Austrian court and "invite her soul." Then a wretched anarchist shot her in Switzerland and presently the kaiser acquired the delightful Villa Achilleon as a southern residence.

Now that the allies, who have occupied Corfu, have decided to there rehabilitate the Serbian army the charming little island is again in the public eye, writes F. Maude Smith.

If you love color, go to Corfu. Corfu, like all Greece, is simply bathed in light.

Under certain conditions the mountains are lilac, deepening to rose and crimson, the fields violet, with salmon pink, purple, ochre and cinnamon, all melting into each other. Over all is "a sky miraculously blue."

Though separated only by a strait from Greece visitors usually come across the Adriatic from Brindisi, embarking in the evening and seeing the island next morning. Others come down from Fiume and Trieste. One may simply stop as long as the ship is discharging and taking on cargo, galloping over a part of the ground, or one may "stay over," which is, of course, the better plan.

In fact, most of us, after once getting ashore at these lovely eastern places vow never to leave, thanks to the confusing noise and insolence of the boatmen who convey passengers and luggage ashore.

The Island and the City.

Corfu (Kerkyra) is the capital of its namesake island. Very irregularly shaped it covers 277 square miles and contains something like 115,000 inhabitants, over 25,000 of this population being in the city of Corfu and its suburbs. The safe and spacious harbor on the east side, next Greece, is lively with shipping (they export olive oil and a few years ago imported chiefly Russian grain and English manufactures). There are ruined fortifications, of course, the Fortezza Vecchia to the east of the town and the Fortezza Nuova to the northwest. Originally the town was inclosed by a wall, so the streets are very narrow and the stone houses four and five stories in height. March, April and May are the ideal times in which to visit this interesting island. October and the first half of November are also very pleasant, but the summer is very hot and the winter is noted for sudden changes of temperature and heavy rains.

In the Odyssey one comes upon Corfu under the rule of Alkinoos, the ancients identifying it with the Phaeacian island of Scheria.

The Corinthians in 734 B. C. established a colony here and the infant so flourished as to menace mamma. In 665 B. C. they fought a battle, the now grown-up offspring (called Corcyra) being victorious. A shrewd colony, she did not share in the Persian wars because she was waiting to throw in her lot with the victors.

Indeed, it has been a case of war, war, war, with Corfu. In 229 B. C. the Romans took possession, but on the partition of the Byzantine empire by the Crusaders in 1205 A. D. it fell to the share of the Venetians, who were replaced by the kings of Naples from 1267 to 1380. The Venetians took it again in the fourteenth century. The Turks made two tries for it (1537 and 1716) and the French occupied it from 1807 to 1814, while from 1815 to 1863 it formed with the other Ionian islands a Heptanesos (seven-island state) under England's protection. In 1858 Gladstone was sent as extraordinary commissioner to consider the grievances of the people. In 1863 the English yielded to the desires of the islanders and consented to their incorporation in the kingdom of Greece.

Its Beautiful Gardens.

Having been released from the Dogana (custom house) the visitor may stroll eastward to the royal palace (built by the English) and to the Spianata (esplanade) that is from the new fortifications to the old ones. Continuing south we come upon the strada marina, where the sea and the moonlight are enjoyed to wonderful advantage.

And the gardens! In them flourish the olive, cypress, orange, lemon, fig, magnolia, palm, banana, eucalyptus, aloe and papyrus. But the olive is seen in greatest profusion in the center of the island, 4,000,000 trees being in the groves. April sees them in bloom, while the fruit ripens from December to March. Unfortunately Corfu does not produce choice oil owing to the primitive appliances for expressing and clearing it.

The inhabitants show more culture than is usual in Greece. This is said to be due to the Venetian and English domination of Corfu. Good roads lead to nearly all parts of the island.

Some seven miles south of Corfu is the Villa Achilleon, which, a few years ago, was to be seen providing one was armed with a pass from the Austrian consul. The most interesting part of its varied architecture is the colonnade to the east with its fine frescoes. The large park descends to the sea in terraces, the fishing village of Benizze with the remains of a Roman villa being below. Among the works of art is a Dying Achilles by Herter and (in a small temple) a seated marble statue of Heine by the Danish sculptor Hasselries.

Drives to the westward are embowered with medlar and apricot trees and romantic cypresses.

A drive to the north and west of the city of Corfu (nearly crossing the long, narrow island) discloses red cliffs on the west coast honeycombed with caves. On top of the rocky height there's a wonderful view—behind the city of Corfu and the picturesque east coast, while far to the northwest are the Othonian islands, one of which is thought to be the isle of Calypso. There is also a fantastically shaped rock resembling a sailing ship which was once thought to have been actually the vessel of Ulysses.

Real climbers are content with nothing less than an ascent of Monte S. Salvatore, the island's highest peak. This view embraces the entire island, the Othonian Isles, the mainland of Greece to the east, the island of Cephalonia to the south and to the west the sea.

PUT IN HOLIDAYS WALKING

One Hundred and Forty Miles Traveled in Seven Days Is Record of Minnesota Girl.

While many Minneapolitans rose from the dinner table and walked to the drug store two blocks away to settle their Christmas dinners, Miss Amelia Braathen went without a Christmas dinner and started out on a walk which lasted a week, says the Minneapolis Journal. She returned to Minneapolis New Year's eve after she had walked 140 miles and visited fourteen towns and eight counties. She wore out a pair of shoes, but came home satisfied with her Christmas vacation.

Miss Braathen was the guest of a sister in Minneapolis. She is teaching a rural school. She left Minneapolis for her work soon after returning from the walking trip.

"I have always liked to walk," Miss Braathen said. "My home is on a farm and there is a lot of room for walking out there. I often used to take walks of ten miles or more, but this was my first attempt at a really long trip."

"On the whole, the trip was not eventful. In all the towns through which I passed I was received most courteously. The last day of my trip I thought my shoes would give out before I reached home, so I bought a pair of rubbers to save the day."

"I traveled light, with my baggage in a small satchel. The first few days I took it easy because I didn't know how fast I could go, but one day I made twenty-five miles. After that I took it easy again, because I was getting near home too fast."

Well Received.

Mabel—So you asked papa for my hand? Did he give you any encouragement?

Arthur—Well, no, but he gave me a drink and a cigar, so I had no kick coming.

Is Your Child In School?

5,000,000 out of the 20,000,000 school children in the United States, suffer from some sort of eye defect, which prevents proper school advancement. There are 300,000 blind dependents in the United States. Most of this blindness could have been prevented if the eyes had been examined and given proper care at the right time. I will be at Dr. Merrill's office Monday, March 27. Bring your child to me on that date and let me give its eyes a thorough examination. The expense to you will be small and your child's eyes will be safe.

Barron-Ludden

A wedding, in which much interest has been manifested among our readers, occurred Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, in San Jose, when Ernest Barron of Campbell and Bertha Laura Ludden were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Ludden, of 220 So. 15th Street, in the presence of the bride's family and a few intimate friends.

The bride was very charming in a gown of white charmeuse, with white chiffon overskirt, and bridal veil fastened with a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and freesias.

Her sister, Miss Gladys Ludden, who acted as bridesmaid, was gowned in pink tulle and white lace.

The brief but impressive service was read by Rev. G. E. Atkinson, the party standing beneath a canopy of bridal-wreath and smilax. Messrs. Frank Towner and T. L. Blanchard sang.

Light refreshments followed, during which Mr. and Mrs. Barron effected their escape, but were later "run to earth" by several of the guests before their departure from the city.

The following were present beside the members of the bride's family, Messrs. and Mesdames T. L. Blanchard, Frank Towner, G. E. Atkinson, J. C. Ainsley, W. S. Shelly, Geo. Robson, and Hinsel of Morgan Hill, Miss Dorothy Storie, Miss Emma Swope and Mr. R. C. Storie.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron will spend a month in the south and will be at home after April 15th, at the home of Mrs. Carson on Los Gatos Road, which has been remodelled and put in readiness for their arrival.

Mrs. Barron is not widely known here, the family having come to California from Missouri about a year ago, during which time they have lived in Morgan Hill and San Jose.

Mr. Barron came to Campbell from England some four years past, and has been connected with the J. C. Ainsley Packing Co. both at home and here.

His circle of friends and acquaintances is very large, due both to his winning personality and his connection with various musical organizations.

The best of good wishes are extended to the newly married couple and a hearty welcome awaits their return.

High Society Doings

The young folks of the High School have been having some very pleasant social functions.

Saturday, March 4th, the Seniors were entertained at the home of Stella Levistah. Nearly all the Seniors being present in spite of the rain. Athletes were prominent.

The Girl's Literary society of the High School enjoyed a masquerade party at the home of Miss Marie Page Saturday evening. Many pretty as well as humorous costumes were worn, and the girls found much amusement in guessing "who was who." Gladys Lowry, Alice Talbot and Gladys Townsend guessed them all. Several old fashioned games were played and light refreshments served.

Misses Weaver, Wood and McGuire enepared.

The girls unanimously declared that "chicken" parties were lots of fun.

Both functions were a success and more are being planned.

Grange Open Meeting

The open meeting of the Grange Tuesday evening was well attended and much interest manifested in the addresses of Messrs. J. H. Bone and G. E. Merrill of the Growers' Information Bureau. The talks were followed by full and earnest discussions.

During the business meeting, resolutions in favor of prohibition and the government ownership of the telephone and telegraph systems were unanimously approved by the grange. A motion was unanimously carried that Orchard City grange endorse the work of the Information Bureau, with the hope that a state Marketing organization may be formed as soon as practicable.

The resolution against the government plan of preparedness was tabled for the present owing to the Mexican situation.

Won From Mt. View

The high school team went to Mountain View Wednesday and rather decisively defeated that school by a score of 17-3. As indicated by the score, it was a one-sided game. All the local lads did was to hit the ball and parade around the bases. Mt. View's errors helping the procession along. The diamond looked like a miniature of the Mt. Hamilton district, but our boys came off with but few misplays.

The ladies have had linoleum laid in the kitchen of the church.

The choir is rehearsing the Easter Cantata every Tuesday evening. Mr. Cramer has arranged for the assistance of Mr. Halameck who will direct the singing next Tuesday evening.

Mr. W. D. McKee, state secretary of the county work of the Y. M. C. A., will speak Sunday morning on the work the association is doing for boys in the rural districts. The parents of our boys should hear this address, as Mr. McKee is contemplating opening work in this county.

Mr. Lloyd will speak in the evening on "The World's Bluffers." This will be more or less in the nature of a lecture-sermon, dealing with matters of general as well as religious interest.

April 7th has been fixed as the date of the annual Roll Call. Put a circle around that date on your calendar.

"The Friendly Church just around the Corner."

Next Sunday we have a double treat. Our good friend, Mr. McCrea, state sec. for county Y. M. C. A. work in California, will give a short talk at the S. S. hour.

Then at the church services, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., our Pacific Coast Sec., Dr. H. H. Kelsey, will speak. Dr. Kelsey's territory extends from northern Alaska to San Diego and east to Texas and New Mexico. He has been in the great men's meetings from Spokane to El Paso, and his message will surely be a fresh one full of inspiration and uplift. Remember he speaks both morning and evening.

Roy Archibald is leader for the C. E. At our next mid week meeting we take up the story of Luke's second book in the New Testament. The studies have proven to be very helpful this year. If you go to church no where else, you are cordially invited to worship with us at any or all of our services.

Hunt, deceased; Orrin Simmons, and "also all other persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the complaint adverse to plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon plaintiffs' title thereto".

Defendants.
Action brought in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the county of Santa Clara and the complaint filed in the office of the clerk of said county of Santa Clara.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Charles A. Hunt, as Administrator of the Estate of E. M. The object of the action is to determine all adverse claims to and clouds upon plaintiffs' title to that certain real estate situate in the County of Santa Clara, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at a point on the Northernly line of Saratoga Avenue, (formerly known as McCarthyville Road), 30 feet Easterly from the Southeast corner of the two-acre tract conveyed by E. M. Hunt, et al., to William James Thompson by deed dated September 28th, 1878, and recorded in Liber 46 of Deeds, page 291 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Santa Clara, State of California, said point being 11 rods and 15 1/2 feet East from a stake marked "9" standing on the North side of said road or avenue; thence Northernly and parallel to the Easterly line of said two-acre tract to the center of the Quilo or Campbell Creek; thence Westerly and along the center of said creek to the Easterly boundary line of land of Kennedy; thence North 150 West to a stake marked "C4" in the center of said Quilo or Campbell Creek; thence South 300 E. 3 1/2 chs. to an Alder tree marked "C5"; thence North 53° East to the Northwest corner of that tract of land as described in that certain deed dated December 8th, 1888 executed by Caroline Brewer to Inez Shields and recorded in Book 114 of Deeds, page 156, Records of Santa Clara County, California; thence Southernly 361 feet, more or less along the Westerly boundary line of said land of Inez Shields to the Northernly line of Saratoga Avenue; thence Southwesterly along the Northernly line of said Saratoga Avenue to the point of beginning.

And the plaintiffs in said action seek judgment that they are the owners in fee simple of the whole of said property; that the above named defendants, and also all other persons unknown claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the said real property adverse to plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon plaintiffs' title thereto be foreclosed and enjoined and forever restrained from asserting any right, title, estate, lien or interest in said real property, or any part thereof and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just.
